HARBOR, RIVER AND MARINE NEWS

Shipping Transactions and Notes of Interest Along the Bay Front.

Every steamer and sailing vessel in the harbor was at work yesterday, and thousands of feet of timber and lumber were stored in holds or on deck for foreign ports. Good weather prevailed until 3:30 o'clock when a storm broke over and swept the bay from one side to the other. No damage was reported and very few sticks of timber went adrift. It was all rafted before the heaviest part of the squall was felt. The wind attained a velocity of 53 miles soon after the storm appeared.

Comes for Cargo.
The big British steamship Tipton, 2300 tons, commanded by Capt. Tattle, who is well known here, entered yesterday one day out from Tampa. The Tipton, consigned to the Gulf Transit Company, has taken berth in the railroad warehouse slip and will fill out here.

Three Million Feet.
Three million feet of lumber in a single cargo was the record of the British steamship Strathallen, 2831 tons, which cleared yesterday for Buenos Ayres. The vessel was ready for sea last evening but Capt. Campbell decided to wait until this morning before beginning the long journey.

Three With Rosin.
Three vessels with naval stores which arrived and unloaded yesterday were the following: Steamer Vernon, from Vernon, 200 barrels; barge Es-cambia, from Floridatown, 330 barrels; steamer Eugene, from Freeport, 295 barrels.

Vessel Shifted.
From the steamship Azalea yesterday went over to Muscogee wharf for coal. Once the bunkers filled, the steamer will again anchor in the stream.

Steamer Clevegrove has moved from Perdido to Muscogee wharf to take on coal and continue on lumber cargo. The ship Fox will be shifted to the stream tomorrow.

The bark Ida has been assigned a berth at Perdido wharf.

Oil to Calm Sea.
Concerning the successful use of oil on the sea to get relief and save cargo, Capt. Marchbanks of the steamer Tipton, on voyage from Pensacola to the continent, has made the following report to the United States Hydrographic Office which has been used on the chart of that office for general information.

"Tugela (British steamship), Capt. J. H. Johnson, reports as follows: While bound east, in latitude 46 north, longitude 41 west, experienced a fresh northwest gale. Used oil to save our deck load. My experience is that with the sea abate the beam it is much better to give a double pressure of oil from the forward closet pipe (weather side) and use bags from mid ship section of steamer and also one at the break of the poop. This method I have found will enable me to run much longer and with less danger of a sea breaking over the bow. The wind and sea increasing, I resolved to leave steamer to oil was freely used and steamer's speed reduced, with the result that for about one-fourth of a mile around the sea was comparatively smooth, and with little difficulty the vessel was brought to the wind. The average speed of steamer while running was 9 knots. The oil used was a cheap quality of colza thinned down with about 30 per cent of kerosene. The bags used were ordinary canvass bags made on board, with small holes pricked in the bottom. By using this style of bag the flow can much more easily be regulated. The amount of oil expended while running before the gale was 1 1/2 gallons per hour. After heaving to I found it better to use only the forward closet pipe, as this was quite sufficient to prevent any water from breaking aboard, and the expenditure of oil was reduced to about one-half gallon per hour. This method was very efficient in smoothing the seas and greatly reduced the risk of losing the deck cargo or sustaining any other serious damage."
